KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 23, 1925.

WHAT THE CENSUS MAY SHOW.

What will the census in New York state show when tabulated? Has the state maintained the same growth during the last five years as was shown in similar periods? Between 1915 and 1920, the State jumped from 3,700,000 inhabitants to 4,400,000, and it is only fair to figure that the state is now over the eleven million mark. Back in 1900 there were 152 persons to the square mile in New York state, this average going to 191 persons in 1910 and reaching 217 in 1920. It will be interesting to learn the average number of persons to each square mile in the Empire State.

When the census figures are tabulated they will show the onward march of business, oftentimes sweeping whole residential sections before it with a resultant loss in population that has shifted to outlying sections which will figure in the coming reapportionment. Suburbs of some of the larger cities, amounting five years or so ago to but little more than straggling streets, have grown into thriving communities, while downtown sections, where many of the older families clung tenaciously to their home surroundings, even though overshadowed by boarding and rooming houses, or business blocks, have given away at last to the encroachments of mercantile establishments.

The coming census will also be of interest as showing whether or not the drift cityward from the smaller village has increased or diminished. The proportion of New York state's population in places of 2,500 or more increased from 72 per cent in 1900 to 78 per cent in 1910, and went to 82 per cent by 1920, with more than two hundred of the incorporated villages of the state showing a slump in their population as the boys and girls drifted cityward.

GENERAL USE OF ENGLISH.

Many years ago a German invented a language for universal use called Volapuk and later came Esperanto. The former is quite and the latter is almost forgotten. And now a German professor is quoted as saying that there is no need to invent for general or universal use a new language because English has virtually taken that position. Already, he says, the person who speaks only English can get along fairly well in any part of the world, for everywhere he will find those who understand him and can make themselves understood by him. At one time French served in this way, but now English has widely superseded it as the second language of everybody who has learned a second. The change was in progress before 1914, and was greatly forwarded by the sojourn of millions of English and American soldiers on the continent of Europe during the greater part of four years.

In spite of its difficulties, including its spelling, English is perhaps better suited for this service than any other language. Much of it is readily understood from the outset by both the Latin and the Teutonic nations because it is so largely derived from both sources. Another great advantage is its simplicity of grammatical construction, a particular in which the languages that decline their nouns and intricately conjugate their verbs can never hope to compete. In the western hemisphere Spanish is spoken in a larger territorial area than English, and for this reason Americans need some knowledge of that language as well as of French. But practically everywhere the foreign-language peoples are now more in need of English than of any other second language.

The Iowa man who determined to shake hands with King George at the Wembley exposition, and actually "put it over," is reported to have shown disappointment when he spoke of the incident on landing in New York. He said that the King was friendly enough, but "more a stray derby." A crown of gold and jewels would have been more fitting, as well as according to expectations.

Mr. Coolidge wrote to the National Flag Day Association that the American flag "alone of all flags expresses the sovereignty of the people."

ple." A dozen or more other republics and perhaps more than one limited monarchy will be disposed to take issue. Moreover, it is not uncommon to hear Americans express the conviction that in these times there is more real freedom in England than in the United States.

Today We Celebrate

ROBERT CLIVE.

One hundred and sixty-eight years ago today witnessed an event that was the real beginning of the British Empire in India. On the morning of June 23, 1757, Robert Clive, a young East India Company clerk, at the head of a small band of Englishmen faced an army of 68,000. Clive's force was made up of about a thousand British soldiers and 2,000 Sepoys. Against the overpowering odds of 23 to 1, the British cause seemed hopeless. They, however, had the cruel tragedy of the Calcutta "Black Hole" to remember—and avenge, and on the field of Plassey they fought with a desperation and valor scarce equalled since the defense of the Greeks against the Persian hosts.

The battle was short and conclusive. Before the determined charge of the Britishers and Sepoys the Moslems broke and fled. The victory laid the foundation of the British Empire in India, with its alien domination of over 225,000,000 peoples and a country among the oldest and richest in the world.

HISTORY OF INDIA.

The first real history of India in the English language was published about 110 years ago by James Mill, who devoted nearly 12 years of the most painstaking labor and research to the work. Mill, who died 89 years ago today, June 23, 1836, was the father of the celebrated philosopher and political economist, John Stuart Mill. James Mill had eight other children and he personally conducted the education of all of them, although busily engaged as a journalist and author. Up to the time Mill wrote his "History of British India," the student desirous of obtaining historical information regarding that country had to wade through a multitude of books and documents. Mill's history, from a literary viewpoint, is not a brilliant performance, but for accuracy it has never been surpassed by any of the many subsequent historical works dealing with the great Indian Empire.

As a result of his work, Mill was offered a lucrative position with the East India Company, and lived in comparative affluence until his death, which was caused by tuberculosis.

CALPURNIA.

Was the daughter of Lucius Piso, of an ancient and honorable family in Rome. She married Caesar after his divorce from his third wife, Pompeia. In Calpurnia, Caesar found such a wife as he desired, whose prudence of conduct placed her "above suspicion." To her virtues she added beauty, talents, prudence, an extraordinary eloquence and a generosity and magnanimity of mind truly Roman. Unmoved by all reverses of fortune, like a true patriot, she showed herself equally dignified when wife to Caesar, senator of Rome, as when consort to the master of the world. Warned, as she thought, in a dream, of her imperial husband's fate, she entreated him not to leave his house on the Ides of March, but, urged by the conspirators, he disregarded her prayers and was assassinated before his return, March 15, B. C. 44.

Calpurnia, superior to the weakness of ordinary minds, pronounced publicly, in the rostra, the funeral eulogium of her husband in an impressive and elegant manner, and declaring a loss like hers to be irreparable, she passed the remainder of her life in mourning, secluded in the house of Mark Antony, to whom she entrusted the treasure and papers of Caesar, that she might be the better enabled to avenge his death.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

June 23, 1905.—Moore bronze works sold by trustee in bankruptcy. Friedmann's store at Rifton destroyed by fire.

Frederick Klinesmith died at his home in Highland.

June 23, 1915.—George Sulter appointed coroner to fill unexpired term of the late Alexander C. Hasbrouck.

Six new steam fire hydrants were ordered by water board to be installed on the high points.

The last reunion of the Kingston Academy alumni was held in Old Kingston Academy.

Patrick Pillsworth died at his home on Post street.

Five Sundays in Month.

The month of February, 1920, had five Sundays. It began on Sunday, and 1920 being a leap year, had 29 days. This strange fact will occur again in 1948 and 1976 if the present calendar continues.

"The Woman in White," published in 1890, was the first of the modern detective novels. It achieved wide popularity, and its author, Wilkie Collins, is known as the father of the detective story.

Cork Insulation.

A combination of cork and concrete for building houses is the latest innovation being tried out in England. It is claimed that the combination insulates the houses both against cold and noise.

Y. W. C. A. Senior Girls' Picnic

The senior girls of the Y. W. C. A. are cordially invited to participate in the picnic to be held at Forsyth Park on Wednesday evening of this week at six o'clock. It will be an informal affair, each girl being requested to bring her own lunch.

Following the supper, summer plans will be discussed and then a general good time enjoyed. In the event of rain, the girls will hold their picnic in the association gymnasium.

All girls wishing to play tennis are asked to "phone the association office where they may be signed up either for a game or for a lesson. The girls are using a court on the Staples property on Broadway for the summer, this courtesy having been granted by the owners of the property.

The new garage of Willard Jenkins on the Plattkill road is completed and the work on the bungalow is progressing rapidly. The carpenter work is in charge of Harry Thompson of Clintondale.

Miss Lois Betz will attend the wedding of her cousin, Helen Leider, editor of Ainslee's magazine, to Robert Earle Bacon, assistant dean of Harvard University at Cambridge on June 26.

Nois P. Lundrup spent the week-end at Oliver Smith's Dunraven. On Saturday afternoon he went trout fishing and caught two about twelve inches long. Mr. Lundrup says Dunraven is a beautiful country.

Most every farmer has a patch of one to twenty acres.

Mrs. Seymour Gotscheus, daughter of Dorsey, are spending a few days with friends at Havana. There they will go to Lenox, Mass., where they will join Mr. Gotscheus at the Aspinwall Hotel where they will spend the summer.

Producing Liquid Air.

Liquid air is a transparent, liquid and intensely cold liquid, slightly blue in color, and of about the same density as water. It is prepared by subjecting air to great pressure and then cooling it by its own expansion to a temperature below the boiling point of its constituents (nitrogen, 194 degrees centigrade; oxygen, 183 degrees centigrade). Its chief use is as a refrigerant.

Toad's Great Value.

Some form of toad can be found in each state. Toads were formerly more numerous. They are now becoming rare, for they are destroyed by all classes of vertebrates and by drought in summer and severe cold in winter. Their value to man lies in the number of insects and other invertebrates which they eat.

Hot Springs and Geysers.

The hot water ejected by hot springs and geysers does not come from deep within the earth, but is surface water that has trickled down through underground channels and become heated by steam from subterranean lava beds.—Science Service.

Mgr. Chidwick Buys Big Camp

Walkkill Grounds Are Ideal for Parish Outing—Outfit is Most Complete—Site for Some Years Was Noted Boys' Camp.

With the purchase of the 200 acre camp site and outfit, for some years past operated by Camp Walkkill, Mgr. Chidwick has acquired an ideal spot for St. Agnes's parish outings, says the Evening Sun. It is near New York, not far from New Paltz, in the Lake Mohonk region, close to the Shawangunk Mountains. It is ideal camping country, with a mile of shore front along the Walkkill river and over ten miles of safe canoeing and splendid camping places for overnight trips.

A short portage opens up a still wider range of beautiful country. The region has great historical interest. There are old stone houses with loopholes cut through to fight the Indians. Deep caves and ice caverns in the hills to be explored, wonderful mountain views, running brooks, great hickory groves, deep woods, open fields and clear mountain air make this a superb camping site.

Equipment Is Complete.

Wireless telegraph and telephone equipment consisting of 100 watt C. W. transmitter, Kennedy 150 to 26,000 meter Universal receiver, also Paragon, De Forest and Westinghouse receivers, eight stages radio and audio frequency amplification. Magnavox and Western Electric loud speakers enable Camp Walkkill to listen in, have musical concerts, baseball scores, etc., and also afford the campers instruction for passing government requirements for amateur license.

The completely equipped dining hall is situated on a small hill near the river, from which one has a beautiful outlook on the surrounding country. At one end of the hall is a large open fireplace. The kitchen is equipped with every modern convenience hot and cold running water, steam dish-washing machine, etc. The sanitary sewerage system carries away all waste. There are washrooms and shower baths.

The great recreation hall is situated on another hill close to the tents, and contains the stage, basketball courts, fireplace, wireless room, canteen, etc., and affords every opportunity for an enjoyable time in inclement weather.

Side Trips Possible.

The location of Camp Walkkill affords opportunities for many trips both on land and water. Short trips are made from time to time into the foothills of the Catskills. On the longer trips a trail is usually followed into the mountains themselves.

There is every opportunity on these hikes to enjoy a full sense of camping in the open—the constant outlook for wild life, the discovery of mountain springs, the use of the axe, the cooking of meals, the building of the big fire, the nights under the stars.

For water trips, groups may go in boats or canoes, taking with them the necessary provisions, and cruise until they find a place for pitching camp for the night. There are ten miles of navigable river, and with two portages it is possible to reach the Hudson.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

WHEN good buttermilk is to be obtained it will find many uses in the food. As a drink, ice cold on a hot day with a lettuce sandwich, it forms a meal. Biscuits made with buttermilk are par excellence; dumplings never are quite so light or ever as delicious as when the buttermilk is used with baking powder.

Head Lettuce, Roquefort Dressing. Take one-fourth of a cupful of roquefort cheese. Mix together one-half teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of oil. Blend well and add the cheese. Pour over head lettuce and serve at once.

Cheese Balls, Water Cress. Take two cupfuls of cottage cheese, dry and unsalted. Mix it with one-half cupful of catsup, one and one-half teaspoonful of salt, paprika, and one-third of a cupful of chopped nuts. Chill thoroughly and make into balls. Serve on water cress.

Sardines a la Tartare. Skin and remove the bones from six sardines. Cut strips of bread the same size as the fish and fry in butter until golden brown. When cool arrange the sardines on the bread, coat them with a tartare sauce and garnish with capers and bits of pimentoes.

Cabbage, Cheese Sauce. Select a hard head of cabbage, removing the heart without further cutting the cabbage. Cook until tender in salted water. Drain, place on a hot chop plate and cover with a thick white sauce to which a cupful or less of cheese has been added. Serve cut in pie-shaped pieces.

Cabbage Salad. Chop one small cabbage; add a cupful of chopped celery to three cupfuls of cabbage and three diced bananas with a slice of finely-minced pineapple. Season well and cover with a highly seasoned salad dressing.

YOUR Last Name

IS IT DELANO?

THE name of this family might be included in a list of names that are peculiarly American, because while it is of French origin, you will never find its like in France.

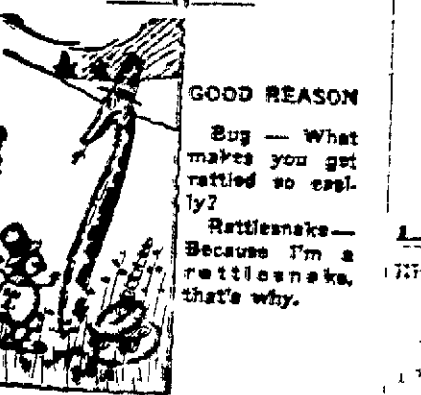

You may trace it back to Philip de La Noire, who was probably the son of Jean de Lanuey, or de Lanoue. Philip came to Plymouth on the Fortune in 1621 from Leyden. Governor Winslow in his history of the colonists tells us that he was born of French parents and that when he had expressed his desire to come into communion with the English colonists he proved himself to have come "from such parents as were in full communion with the French churches." By this Winslow of course meant that he was a son of thoroughly Protestant parents.

His father, Jean, was born about 1603 in Leyden. Philip was married in Duxbury, whether he went after leaving Plymouth, to Esther Dewsbury, and later to Mary Pontus, widow of James Glass. Later he went to Bridgewater and then was one of the purchasers of Dartmouth and later of Middleborough.

The name Delano was not spelled in that way until the time of Philip's grandchildren. It is interesting that one of his great-grandchildren, Susannah by name, married Noah Grant, and was therefore an ancestress of Gen. U. S. Grant.

The name has been traced to its French source, and it is believed to be identical to that borne by a prominent family of Brittany, to which belonged Francois de la Noire, known as the Iron-armed. He was a brave warrior, and bore his sobriquet because after having lost an arm in battle it was replaced by one of iron to answer the purpose of holding his reins while on horseback.

CHECKLESS DRIVE-UPS

TWO AT MILTON.

Walking along the beach is about a half mile north of Milton, Andrew Norton and a woman (ter of 168 Forty-third st. of New York) and Mrs. Leona Bondson 21 of 24 Broadway, New York, were "towed" and knocked down at 11 o'clock Sunday evening. Norton was an old model Paris tourist car raceless driver of the "vroom" 18 of the road by an unknown driver as yet unapprehended. The pair had been into the village of Milton during the evening, and were returning to the camp in the car which the woman has been driving, when the accident occurred. The car which struck them appeared to be a "vroom" and at great speed moved in the wrong side and struck Norton. Norton was against the fence and to the ground. Mrs. Bondson was about 10 feet from the fence and Norton was hit by the fence. Mrs. Bondson was also struck and knocked down, although she was not comparatively slightly hurt.

Mr. Hoover Said

Speaking to the great advertising convention at Houston, the Secretary of Commerce gave these reasons for the success of newspaper advertising:

"The consumer, searching for article or service, turns to the advertising columns of our press to learn just where to go after it, and so avoids the waste motion and loss of time and strength involved in blind search for fulfillment of his desire. All these things eliminate waste motion and time."

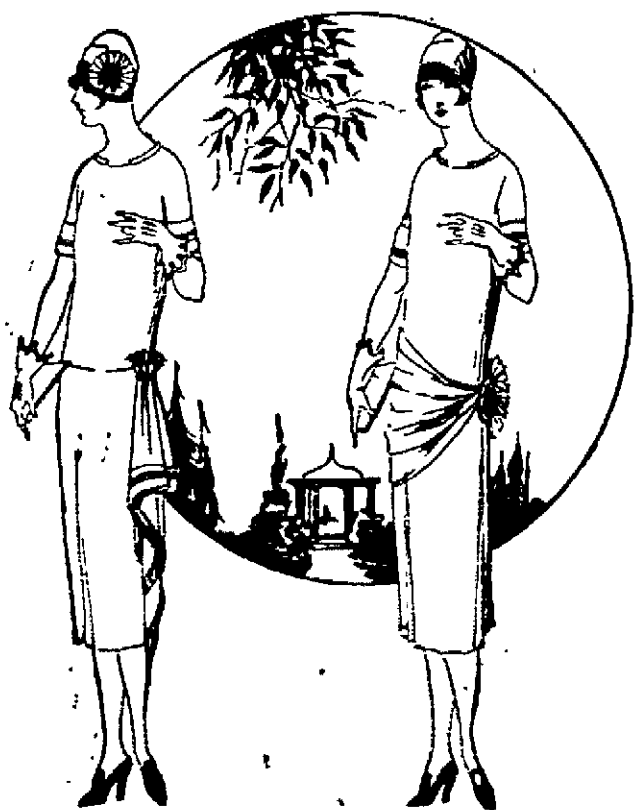

The elimination of waste motion in national merchandising reduces selling expense.

Newspaper advertising, judiciously used in good markets, gets distribution and sales at minimum cost.

Newspaper advertising permits the advertiser to tell where his product may be found.

"INDIVIDUALITY OF DRESS"

Thin Woman Should Consider The Question Of Draperies

It is generally accepted that draperies are good for a thin girl because they make her appear stouter. This is not an invariable rule, however, as the illustrations above will show. The drapery on the left is too skimpy and it also emphasizes a lengthened line. Both of these characteristics make it unbecoming. The drapery on the right is also just a little out of tone. It comes in too snugly and fails to achieve its purpose of cutting the figure height. A waistline drapery of this sort is rarely successful.

LEGION ENDOWMENT FUND DRIVE BEGINS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 23.—The American Legion Endowment Fund campaign "for those who gave the most" officially opened in New York Monday.

The zero hour for shock troops was at dawn in many communities of the empire state when committees of legionnaires, prominent citizens, and members of the Legion Auxiliary went forth on an errand of helpfulness for American World War sufferers.

Although it was the day for the official beginning of the state's effort for disabled veterans and war orphans, fireworks on the far hung battle line from Buffalo to Albany New York already had been started, according to Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the New York campaign committee.

Unable to hold back enthusiastic friends of the undertaking in many cities and towns, the state committee has found that a great many communities already have gone "over the top" and a substantial part of the amount sought in New York had been obtained.

Safety on Public Highways

While many states and local communities are making efforts to reduce their traffic accidents, widely representative committees of experts are busy on surveys and recommendations which will be presented at the Second National Conference on Street and Highway Safety to be held in November.

The 1924 conference adopted recommendations which were admitted only the first step toward a national traffic policy, yet which had involved the work of nearly two hundred nationally known authorities on various phases of the traffic problem. In the preparations for the 1925 conference, Secretary Hoover has drawn together 130 more experts to consider recommendations which may be supplementary and more complete in their effect on traffic hazards and on the provisions for expediting traffic movement.

Two of the committees were continued over from the 1924 conference in order that the continuity of their work might not be interrupted and its value impaired. These were the committee on statistics and the committee on public relations. The former brought to light the fact that data as to traffic accidents was either lacking completely or was so lacking in uniformity that a true picture of death and injury and of the damage of property could not be drawn. The latter was charged with the duty of cooperating with public and private organizations in putting into effect the recommendations of the conference.

New committees have begun their work with special emphasis on what were considered by the 1924 conference matters of the greatest import. One of these is the committee on uniformity of laws and regulations, another the committee on law enforcement, and a third the committee on metropolitan traffic facilities. A fourth, the committee on causes of accidents, will hold its first meeting in the near future.

The first of the new committees to undertake its work was that on Metropolitan traffic facilities. This committee had before it the recommendations placed before the conference of 1924 by committees on traffic control, city planning and construction and engineering. Each of these pointed to the fact that the growth of motor traffic had been so rapid as to cause a critical situation in almost every city because there had been little or no effort to plan traffic facilities to meet future requirements. These conditions, combined with the rapid growth of the urban populations, particularly since the World War, hold a further menace unless steps are at once taken in every community along two lines. One of these is along the lines of immediate amelioration and is possible through the cooperation of official and civic organizations. It involves the study of congestion centers, of possibilities of diverting "through" traffic, of segregation of various classes of traffic to permit a more even flow of traffic. It also involves studies by the community's representatives of the parking problem in its relation to a more even flow of traffic as well as to safety. The other step is in the direction of a long-time program of planning, and is one which calls for exhaustive studies to be made of probable future growth—even beyond existing city limits—and the development of a long-time financing program to permit the necessary facilities to be provided.

This committee, headed by Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the Washington federal city committee, is gathering from many sources information which will show the financial loss to communities through traffic congestion. It will present definite suggestions as to how the steps described above may be taken by any community, and will also suggest ways in which the private or civic organization may assist the authorities in the development of such programs.

The committee on law enforcement, which has as its chairman Chief Magistrate William McDade of the New York city courts, is tackling a problem of primary importance, both from the standpoint of weeding out the criminal, reckless, or physically or mentally incompetent driver and of developing a program which will make for a more comprehensive training of officers enforcing traffic.

At its initial meeting the discussions focussed around the importance of swift, sure and reasonable uniform penalties to serve as an effective deterrent to traffic violators. Use by the courts of power to suspend or revoke licenses was shown by the experience of all the traffic court judges present to be a most valuable aid in law enforcement. Considerable attention was also paid to the necessity for mandatory penalties for certain offenses, such as driving while intoxicated, or driving after suspension or revocation of license. In the interests of greater protection to the public the exchange of information between state motor vehicle commissioners as to offenders against traffic laws was outlined as it is practiced between New York and New Jersey.

It was declared by a number of speakers from different sections of the country that excessive speed was a primary cause of fatal accidents.

The question of uniformity was declared to be of vast importance for the development of a code of the road for motor vehicles. Such a code should become the common practice for motorists just as other forms of highway traffic have followed common practices for a century and a half in this country. Doubt was expressed that the country is anywhere near the "saturation point" in the use of motor vehicles and it was a consensus of opinion that unless uniform methods of enforcement of regulation and of enforcement of the traffic laws are followed the highway problem will not be solved.

The committee on uniformity of laws and regulations, the chairman of which is General Nathan William Mac Chesney, is undertaking the problem of outlining a model or uniform motor vehicle law for the next conference to consider. In this law will be incorporated the important principles recommended by the first conference together with numerous detailed provisions based on a study of existing laws which have stood the test of actual experience. In the first meeting this committee had before it a tentative uniform law drafted by a committee of the commissioners on uniform state laws and further cooperation between those committees has been arranged to facilitate the development of the most desirable form of motor vehicle laws and regulations.

That Frocks in Formal Vein Are Frequently Lace Trimmed and Often of Taffeta.

In spite of the fact that sports clothes are told about in song and story and are absolutely the headliners of fashion's summer program, more formal clothes do not fail in their appeal. The addition of a bit of lace adds to this formality. Irish lace must be listed first in recounting the varieties met with, Point Venise following.

It is understood that both of these lace are dipped in the same dye pot that color the fabric. Laces are seldom white just now. For that matter, what—save a dainty evening gown—ever is. We have started on a mad scramble to out-rainbow the rainbow.

A Daytime Frock of Formal Quality.

Fiat crepes hold their own against taffeta, but taffeta has a newer look and lends itself very smartly to gowns such as the one portrayed; that is, gowns which bell out at the lower edge—usually of the tunic.

There is a particular charm about a jabot which follows its course down the length of a gown. This one takes on added interest by reversing itself at a low line, and is of heavy ecru Point Venise, applied to the taffeta jabot, the color of the lace being repeated in the facing of the convertible collar. It is admitted that with cooler weather there is a chance for high collars. One realizes this by the success of the turtle neck and the manner in which scarfs are wound about the throat.

Ensemble Scheme Is in High Favor

Popular Mode Carries Into Almost Every Element of Fashion.

The ensemble scheme carries into almost every conceivable element of fashion. In the latest robes d'intérieur, negligees and lingerie it is the fad to assemble colors and shades harmoniously. With a blue crepe de chine negligee lined with orchid chiffon are shown a nightgown, combination, bodice cap, mules, and even garters, all of the same materials and colors. In lingerie the two-tone garments are the very last word from Paris. A nightgown lovely enough to be worn as a tea gown is made of pale blue chiffon, lined throughout with rose-colored chiffon. It is made without other trimming around the V-neck and sleeveless armholes. The bottom of the gown is finished with a bias flounce, also of the two colors.

Some fetching combinations are made with a definite waistline, the bodice having two colors, rose and orchid, alternating in large pieces. These are repeated in the lower part of the garment. Little lace or other trimming is used on these daintily colored things, which are usually finished with fine needlework or hemstitching.

The vogue of printed silks also has spread into every field in woman's wardrobe. The new decorative silks are delightfully adapted to bodice, as will be noted in a charming breakfast coat in Mogen age style of bright-hued material in a modern floral design, combined with a skirt in plain silk banded twice with printed fabric.

Breakfast Coat in Modern Floral Design; Plain Silk Skirt.

The very newest thing in separate blouses is the peasant blouse. It is a straight, loose overblouse gathered with a cord into a plain round neckline. The sleeves are full, drawn into a snug line at the wrist, the bottom held in slightly with a band joined to the blouse with hemstitching. These blouses are shown in entertaining variety—printed crepe, plain voile of many colors and shades, white crepe and novelty cottons. Some of those in white are effectively embroidered with gay-colored crows in the peasant patterns.

A charming affair is the scarf blouse. It is cut much like the ordinary overblouse, but without fullness. To the open V-neck is attached at the back a wide scarf of the crepe, permitted to hang as a cape, if desired, or drawn to the front and tied in bertha fashion. These are shown in many pretty arrangements of color, light blue, rose, orchid, yellow, green, with a flat vest of white and the scarf of white, or the same color as that of the blouse.

Delicate Tints Are in Favor for Summer Wear

A wide range of delicate tints are being introduced for the very early summer. There are all the soft blues and pinks and corals which have not appeared for some seasons now, and which are especially suited to the gowns of the feminine picture type.

In a recent fashion show the colors which were especially prominent were yellow, blue, beige, green and a lovely peach and apricot tint. The yellow appears in buttercup, sulphur and chrysanthemum tones, with interesting tints bordering on gold. Blue is again at the height of fashion, after a season or so in which it disappeared from use almost entirely. Madonna, azure and periwinkle are sponsored.

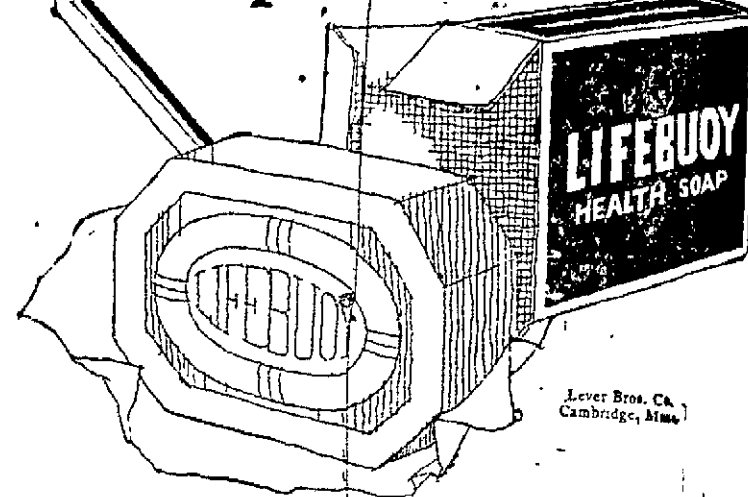

Skirts are shorter than ever, and some children dresses have lace bands which barely cover the knees. Most fashion houses, however, average a length of fifteen inches from the ground.

Pocket in Hat

What could be more appropriate than a little felt hat with a handkerchief placed in a pocket in its crown. These handkerchiefs which peep out in a way to add materially to the effect of the hat, match the scarf worn about the neck.

Kiwanis Night Over WDBZ Was Successful

Radio Owners Heard Perfectly An Interesting Program Monday Night—Kingston Broadcasting Station Now Closed Until September When It Will Be Much Stronger.

The Kingston Kiwanis Club was one of the 1,380 Kiwanis Clubs that met simultaneously throughout the United States on Monday evening to celebrate "All Kiwanis Night" which was held in connection with the opening session of the ninth annual Kiwanian convention at St. Paul, Minn. The Kingston Kiwanis Club held its meeting in the banquet hall on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. and its proceedings were broadcast from Station WDBZ, the broadcasting station of the Ulster County Boy Scouts in the city hall tower. Wires were run from the "Y" to the station, and from telephone messages received during the evening the program came in over the radios throughout Ulster county in excellent form.

Promptly at 8:30 o'clock District Trustee William A. Van Valkenburgh called the Kiwanians to order and the evening's program opened with the singing of "America" by the club to the accompaniment of Kiwanian Paul Zucca's orchestra, which was followed by a brief prayer by Secretary Robert J. Service and the "fellowship moment of silence" with all standing.

The announcing was done by Scout Executive G. Henry Nesslage, the official announcer of Station WDBZ, and he then introduced the Kiwanis Quartet, Messrs. Clarence S. Rowland, J. J. Ariens, Harry Larus and George E. Lowe, who sang "I've Been Working on the Railroad" which was followed by the singing of the Kiwanis song by the members of the club.

Announcer Nesslage then turned the "micro" over to Mr. Van Valkenburgh, who presided and explained briefly the purpose of the meeting. He said, "Before going further with our program allow me to explain why we are in meeting this evening. Instead of Thursday noon, our regular meeting time. Last year when the international convention was held in Denver, the Zero Hour program was carried out as an experiment and the unanimous response from the clubs all over the United States and Canada was such that our International President, Victor M. Johnson has called all Kiwanians in session at this time for the purpose of holding a uniform and simultaneous program for the 94,000 Kiwanians assembled in their respective clubs and in convention at St. Paul. The voluntary gathering of these Kiwanians is a demonstration of the united fellowship which exists in Kiwanis today, not only among the 6,000 of 7,000 delegates now assembled in convention at St. Paul but among the 90,000 or more Kiwanians who are representing that great organization by attendance at their own club meeting, specially called to express to the world that we are one body, organized for one specific purpose, even though our component parts may be separated by thousands of miles. Notwithstanding this we are able to concentrate our attention and thought on the purpose of Kiwanis, and harmonize our feelings and unite our members together in a spirit of cooperative effort and become a medium through which the knowledge of the purpose, ideals and objectives of Kiwanis are manifested to its members and the public in the United States and Canada."

Mr. Van Valkenburgh then introduced to the club the two new members present at the meeting, Messrs. Suskind and Keller, who were greeted in proper Kiwanian manner. Kiwanian Zucca and his orchestra took the floor and performed in characteristic fashion and the club sang "The Song of Kiwanis" in a spirited manner.

Kiwanian the Rev. William J. Nelson was introduced and recited the "Inter-club Relations Creed," which was followed by another song by the club and a solo by "Honest and Truly," sung by Paul "Jazz" Purcell, with Miss Ferrell, the club's pianist, at the piano.

"Old MacDonald Had a Farm" was sung by the club, led by Kiwanian Zucca and then Judge Joseph M. Fowler, a member of the club, was introduced and spoke on "The Meaning of All Kiwanis Night and Kiwanis Duties." He spoke as follows:

Judge Fowler's Address.
We some times hear the inquiry—What is Kiwanis? and Why is Kiwanis? and I am asked to answer the inquiries.

First—What is Kiwanis? It is an international organization, consisting, in the United States and Canada, of 1,380 local branches or clubs, with a total membership of nearly 100,000. Practically every city and many of the larger villages throughout the country has a branch or club. It is non-sectarian, it does not recognize race or creed. Its membership is limited to two members from any particular profession, business or occupation, or from a specialized branch of the profession or business. A member must be 100 per cent American citizen, in good standing in his respective line, and a believer in the principles upon which the organization stands.

Second—Why is Kiwanis? Kiwanis is the result of a belief in three ideas and principles: first that the business and professional men of a community should not be antagonistic or rivals but friends and co-workers; that a better acquaintance will lead to a better understanding and more friendly feeling one with another. To that end the clubs have weekly lunches at some central place lasting about an hour and a quarter. These lunches are informal and good fellowship abounds. Secondly, is the idea that the professions and businesses of a community are not independent but on the contrary are essentially interdependent, that the community is in many respects a large family and that which is of direct benefit to one line is of indirect benefit to the others, that the problems of one and their solutions may be of aid to another; to this end a very considerable portion of the luncheon period is given over to a talk by some member as to some phase of his business, or his hobby, or by an invited guest, many times by one of wide reputation in his particular line.

Thirdly, is the idea and belief that as members of the community family we have an obligation to the other members of that family individually and as a whole, that the man who goes from his place of business to his home and from his home to his place of business and whose thoughts and interests are centered entirely upon these two places has fallen far short of meeting his full duty but is also missing his greater opportunities, to this end members of Kiwanis are expected to participate in civic and eleemosynary movements, they are expected to be active members of Chambers of Commerce, boards of trade or whatever the local general community organization may be, as a club it is required to sponsor at least one movement or project for the betterment of local conditions.

Kingston Kiwanis is nearly 100 per cent in the Chamber of Commerce, it is backing actively the Boy Scouts Council, it initiated and financed during the past few months the furnishing of milk to needy children in certain of the local schools, last year it brought to Kingston and assumed the responsibility for the Chautauqua course of entertainments which were so well received that it is repeating the efforts this year. It has a committee and a fund for the relief of underprivileged children, it has furnished teams or workers for other movements having worthy purposes, and has tried to help wherever help was merited and could be given, and to interest itself in civic affairs generally.

In brief, Kiwanis has tried to be a factor in the upbuilding and betterment of Kingston, and if it has in any measure succeeded in its efforts it is fully paid; and not one of us but feels that his membership in the organization has been to his own profit, not profit in a mercenary sense, but profit in good fellowship and in opportunity for service.

Kiwanis appreciates the support it has had from the people of Kingston and the confidence they have shown to have in it, and Kiwanis hopes it will merit the continuation of that support and confidence.

Telegram of Greeting.
Kiwanian Van Valkenburgh then read a telegram received from President Charles A. Lasher and Vice President Chester Baltz who are representing the Kingston Kiwanis Club at the St. Paul convention. He also read a telegram that had been sent to the international president, Victor M. Johnson, which read: "Kingston Club extends cordial greetings to you and assurance of continued harmony of feelings on the occasion of this All Kiwanis Night meeting."

To the Kiwanis clubs at Beacon, Poughkeepsie, Hudson, Newburgh, Middletown, and Port Jervis the local club sent the following telegram: "Kingston extends to you kindly greetings and continued good fellowship on this All Kiwanis Night."

Following the ancient Kiwanian custom, Kiwanian Van Valkenburgh then called on each member and guest to introduce themselves, and forming in a line they marched past the "micro" and as they did so they announced their name so that those who were tuned in could know who was present at the meeting.

"Jazz" Purcell then sang "At Dawning" in a masterly manner and was followed by the club in some request numbers that had come in over the telephone and which included some of the old time songs which the club, led by Kiwanian Zucca, sang in a spirited manner. One of the best numbers was one of the Billy Sunday revival hymns, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Promptly at 10 o'clock, the "Zero Hour," the club stood in silence for a brief time and then the "Zero Hour" message by Victor M. Johnson, international president, was read by Kiwanian Van Valkenburgh.

WDBZ Will Carry Further.
After several more selections by the orchestra and club singing, Announcer Nesslage stated that this was the last program that would be put on the air until some time in September. At the present time the Kingston station was a ten watt station and through the work of up-town business men it would be increased during the summer to a 50 or 100 watt station and then it would be possible to hear the program as far west as Chicago. The work of making the station a more powerful one had been assumed by William A. Warren and work would be rushed on the station this summer.

The broadcasting program also included the presentation of the attendance prize which was won by Kiwanian Ben Charchian and proved to be an alarm clock. The committee awarding the prize consisted of Kiwanians John P. Mack and Henry D. Darrow.

A delightful evening's program was closed with the singing of "The Builders" by the club, accompanied by the orchestra.

A luncheon was afterward served and the club and its guests and a social hour followed.

According to the many telephone messages received throughout the evening from radio owners, the program came in full and clear and the club publicly complimented the men who had made it possible to broadcast the evening's program.

POSSIBLE ECONOMIC CRISIS FACES ENGLAND.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, June 23.—England faces a possible economic crisis based on financial and labor troubles in the key industries, rail and coal, it was conceded today by industrial experts who were anxiously awaiting the outcome of a series of labor conferences scheduled for this week. Executives and employees have been called for a combined conference to discuss serious financial difficulties confronting the principal railroads of England, and out of the discussion may come the suggestion of voluntary salary and wage reductions affecting all employees and executives.

At the same time, coal operators and miners will be in session considering wage scales and the present working agreement. It was reported today that the miners may decide to terminate the present agreement with the operators, a move that almost certainly would be followed by a strike.

FIRE THREATENED JERSEY CITY BASEBALL PARK.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Jersey City, N. J., June 22.—The Jersey City International League baseball park was threatened today by flames from the burning plant of the Barons Manufacturing Company. The fire was still smoldering at 9 o'clock this morning, having spread to the adjoining plant of the Jersey City Carpet Cleaning Company.

Two women were injured while fighting the flames.

MORE LABORERS LEAVE THAN ARE ADMITTED

More common laborers left the United States than were admitted during the first ten months since the new 2% quota immigration law went into effect, according to an analysis of immigration statistics for that period made by the National Industrial Conference Board, 247 Park avenue, New York.

Common laborers admitted from July, 1924, to April, 1925, were 27,908 in number, as against 97,886 during the same period a year previous; but 44,750 of that class left the country during the same time, leaving an actual deficit of 16,842 for the ten months since the operation of the new immigration law.

Net immigration of all classes from July, 1924, to April, 1925, shows a decrease of 71.4% as against the corresponding period the year before. A total of 242,965 persons were admitted during the ten months under the new quota law, as against 637,602 during the same period the year previous showing a decline of 62% in total immigration. From July, 1924, to last April, 78,578 departed, as compared to 63,924 from July, 1923, to April, 1924, leaving a net immigration during the last ten months of 164,387, as against 574,278 during the corresponding ten months in the year prior to the new quota law.

Of the 242,965 admitted during the ten months ending last April, 133,352 were farm laborers; of this class, only 1,232 left the country during the same period, leaving a net gain of 12,120 of farm laborers. Others admitted were professional people, 8,809, while 1,665 emigrated; skilled labor, 41,716, of which class, 17,171 left; of miscellaneous occupations, 40,204 were admitted, 6,367 of this class leaving; of no occupation, including women and children, 98,627 came in, and 17,262 departed.

While the ultimate effect of the new quota law at this time cannot be determined, according to the Conference Board, the scaling down of immigration to about a fifth of what it was before the war, has the immediate effect of stabilizing the growth of our population. It is pointed out, with the attending result of a sustained high wage level. Actual money wages in industry today are cited as averaging 116% above what they were before the war. Allowing for the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar, and assuming that the same standard of living prevailed as existed in 1914, the wage earner today is about 30% better off, as regards "real" wages than he was at the peak of the wage level of 1920, according to the Conference Board.

THE GREATEST OFFENDERS IN THIS RESPECT ARE FOREIGNERS OR THOSE OF RECENT FOREIGN DESCENT WHO ARE SLOW TO ADOPT MODERN METHODS. AS A RULE THEY HAVE NO CONCEPTION OF THE VALUE OF STRICT SANITATION AND REGARD ITS FORCED APPLICATION TO THEIR BUSINESS AS INTERFERENCE WITH RIGHTS.

"Most cities have adequate laws or ordinances governing sanitary methods and practices of retail food distribution, but few are enforced effectively. Local boards of health officials when consulted about their problems stated that they were handicapped because of insufficient funds and salary limitations which prevented employment of men qualified for the work. Outstanding examples where sanitary methods were lacking were found in New Orleans, La.; Birmingham, Ala.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Cleveland, O.; Detroit, Mich.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicago, Ill.; Lincoln, Neb.; Denver, Colo.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Seattle, Washington; Portland, Ore.; San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles, Cal.

"While efficient, practical and progressive dealers take pride in following sanitary practices, there are many in the industry who have little or no regard for sanitation in any form," the department says. "These dealers hamper effective administration of existing sanitary regulations and use every means in their power to evade the law."

"The greatest offenders in this respect are foreigners or those of recent foreign descent who are slow to adopt modern methods. As a rule they have no conception of the value of strict sanitation and regard its forced application to their business as interference with rights."

Survey of Retail Meat Business

By Department of Agriculture Shows Need in Sanitary Practices, Elimination of Misleading Advertising, Etc.

Need in the retail meat business for better sanitary practices, elimination of misleading advertising, greater knowledge of fundamental business principles, and elimination of unwarranted competition, is urged by the department of agriculture as a result of a study of retail meat marketing.

"There should be an organized effort on the part of the trade to prevent fraudulent and dishonest practices by retail dealers," the department says. "Misleading advertising is one of these evils which should be eliminated. Too many shops make excessive and harmful competition. More knowledge of costs and the fundamental principles of business are needed."

"Comparisons of business practices and exchange of information within the trade will contribute to more efficient retailing. Retailers should cooperate more closely with local health authorities to bring about better sanitary conditions. Education of consumers to recognize qualities and cuts of meat will improve trade conditions by eliminating unwarranted competition among dealers handling different qualities of meat."

The information gathered by personal interviews with retail dealers, local and state representatives of retail associations, local health authorities and others well informed on the subject of meat distribution. It deals also with margins, expenses and profits of retail meat dealers in 15 cities, and presents data from personal interviews with housewives in 13 cities to determine the habits and customs of families which affect their use and consumption of meat.

The cities and towns included in the study are New Haven, Conn.; New York city; Binghamton, N. Y.; Baltimore, Md.; Washington, D. C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Birmingham, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Cleveland, O.; Detroit, Mich.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicago, Ill.; Lincoln, Neb.; Denver, Colo.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Seattle, Washington; Portland, Ore.; San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles, Cal.

INTRODUCE EVIDENCE AGAINST MRS. SYMINGTON

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 23.—Evidence that Mrs. Ida May Symington admitted being guilty of the charges brought against her in a divorce suit by her wealthy husband, Thomas H. Symington, of Baltimore and Rochester, was introduced into the trial today in the form of an affidavit sworn to by Dr. Edward S. Pope of Montclair, N. J.

The affidavit was introduced while Dr. Pope, a friend of Symington's, was on the witness stand. According to the affidavit, Mrs. Symington, during a conversation with Dr. Pope, said to him: "Do you know Tom is beginning an action against me for adultery?" Then, said the affidavit, Dr. Pope said to the defendant: "You know and he knows that you are guilty."

"Yes," the document said, Mrs. Symington answered, "That may be so. But he only knows what I have told him and he will not be able to make a case out of that."

BELIEVES COOLIDGE'S FIGURES ARE TOO LOW

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, June 23.—After a conference with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, announced today that taxes cannot be reduced more than $300,000,000 in the next congress. Aside from Green's opposition to repeal of the federal estate tax, he is in general agreement with Mellon on the new tax bill.

Green doubted, however, whether or not the government can be operated in the year beginning July 1, 1926, within the $3,080,000,000 limitation set by President Coolidge.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 23.—The market as a rule was dull, narrow and professional today, though commission houses reported good public buying in General Motors and a few of the better grade utility and dividend industrial stocks, including United States Steel.

Call money ruled at four per cent, against yesterday's closing rate at 4 1/2 per cent. Bearish traders offered freely, relying on the lack of public buying to aid them. The bulls put up a strong resistance for the first two hours, but shortly after the noon hour a selling wave swept over the market and depressed prices on industrial leaders from 1 to 3 points. Public utility stocks kept under cover while this movement was in progress, but General Motors displayed unusual strength and sold fractionally above the previous close.

Oils were unable to absorb heavy selling without good sized recessions in prices.

Chicago and Northwestern sold nearly two points lower on announcement that both Chairman Huggitt and President Finlay had resigned. Pennsylvania was a strong spot in the railroad stocks, advancing through 47 on heavy buying. The copper, independent steels and equipments were buoyant in the early trading, but were unable to hold their gains and lapsed back into a reactionary tone. Washington's favorable reception of the president's suggestions for income tax reduction was an important feature.

Shepherd Denies All Charges

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Ill., June 23.—William Darling Shepherd, charged with the murder of his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McCintock, today took the witness stand in his own defense.

A crowd which had begun to gather long before today's session started, and which battled for admission to the court room, strained forward as the defendant, his face wan with the prison pallor, mounted the witness chair.

Shepherd looked coldly and dispassionately at the crowd and then settled back for the direct examination of Attorney William S. Stewart, chief of his counsel.

"You are charged with administering various forms of poison," Stewart intoned in a loud clear voice. "Did you administer poison?" "I did not," Shepherd replied steadily.

Again and again, as the attorney went slowly through the various charges in the indictment, came that ringing denial. "I did not."

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT DARTMOUTH COLLEGE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Hanover, N. H., June 23.—At the 154th commencement exercises in Webster Hall today Dartmouth College conferred ten honorary degrees and gave sheepskins to 333 graduates.

Doctor of Laws: Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of North Carolina; Livingston Ferrand, president of Cornell University; John Garibaldi Sargent, attorney general of the United States.

Doctor of Divinity: Frank Walworth Hodgson, professor of ministerial practice, Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, Cal.; George Sherman Mills, acting pastor of the Wellington Avenue Congregational Church, Chicago.

Doctor of Science: Frank Baldwin Jewett, president of the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Master of Arts: Lemuel Gulliver Hodgkins, former deputy commissioner of insurance of Massachusetts; Louis Bertram Hopkins, director of personnel, Northwestern University; Fred Allen Walker, newspaper executive; John Gilbert Winant, governor of New Hampshire.

COOLIDGE FREE TO ENJOY EARNED VACATION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, June 23.—President Coolidge met with his cabinet today for the last time this summer. Members of his official family agreed with him that there were no pressing problems confronting the government which demanded the president's presence in the capitol, and the last cabinet meeting for several weeks was spent in going over the "state of the Union" in domestic and foreign affairs.

SHAKEN UP WHEN TRAIN LEAVES TRACKS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Middleboro, Mass., June 23.—Scores of passengers on a New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad train bound for Cape Cod, were shaken up today when the train left the tracks about a mile north of the Middleboro station.

The locomotive and four coaches left the rails and bumped over the ties for nearly 100 yards before the train was brought to a stop at the edge of a 15 foot embankment.

FRANCE WILL NOT EVACUATE MOROCCO

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, June 23.—France's Moroccan policy will be one of steel backed by a grim determination to control territory over which it claims sovereignty.

"France has no intention of evacuating Morocco and leaving Abd-el-Krim to pursue his reign of terror," Premier Painleve told the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon.

Brussels, June 23.—New tax laws must be voted to enable Belgium to pay its debt to the United States, Premier Poole declared in his inaugural message to the Senate and Chamber of Deputies this afternoon.

Further Action In Kresge Suit

Following Completion of Seven Million Dollar Action—Claims Her Husband Was Stung and Called Her a "Gold Digger."

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 23.—Further action in the courts following the completion of the $7,000,000 suit filed by Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge against her husband, Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire store owner and philanthropist, was announced today by counsel for Mrs. Kresge.

According to her attorneys, the civil suit to recover 17,500 shares of S. S. Kresge stock, which Mrs. Kresge claims was to have been made over to her in lieu of dower rights surrendered on her wedding day, is merely to establish her status financially.

Mrs. Kresge's claim, according to the complaint filed, is that her millionaire husband was parsimonious to an extreme which made it impossible for her to live as she was accustomed.

She declared in the complaint that when she discussed the stock transaction with him, he became angered, denounced her as a "gold digger" and left her.

Mrs. Kresge was Miss Doris Mercer, daughter of Captain George A. Mercer of Pittsburgh. In November, 1919, she divorced her first husband, Percival D. Hardin in Syracuse, N. Y.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.
Martha Barnes died in this city on Monday. She was a sister of Mrs. Esther Henion of 45 Gill street. Funeral at the chapel of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, on Thursday at 10 a. m. Interment in Montrose cemetery.

Margaret S. Burns, wife of Douglas Burns, and mother of Arthur S. Burns of this city, died at her home in Bovina Center, Delaware county, Monday, June 22, in the sixty-ninth year of her age. Besides her husband she is survived by four children. Funeral at the United Presbyterian Church, Bovina Center, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Marjorie A. Welant, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Welant of Elm street, Saugerties, died at her home Monday morning about three o'clock. Marjorie was a bright and vivacious child and was admired by her playmates and many friends. Her death is a very sorrowful one and the parents have the sympathy of their many friends.

Captain Peter Flynn, of Port Ewen, died at the Ottawa Hospital, Ottawa, Canada on Sunday. He was in the transportation business, operating boats on the inland waters. He is survived by his wife, who was Margaret Fee of Port Ewen, two sons, James and Maurice, and four daughters, Esther, Sarah and Mary at home and Margaret, wife of Peter Ford, of New York city. Funeral from the late residence at Port Ewen Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at the Church of the Presentation with a requiem Mass for the repose of his soul. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Charles W. Myer, who died at his residence at Maple Hill Wednesday, was held from his late residence, Saturday at 2:30 and was very largely attended by his many friends who had gathered to pay their respects to the one they highly respected. He was a resident of Maple Hill for about 14 years and had won a large circle of friends, who will be very sorry to lose their associate. The floral offerings were numerous and very beautiful, which was a silent testimony of the esteem in which he was held. The interment was in Bloomington cemetery, where the Rev. Mr. Bedford, pastor of the Bloomington Reformed Church, officiated.

The entire community of Bushnellville was saddened to learn of the death of Emory D. Hommel, who died at his home in Bushnellville on Saturday, June 13. Mr. Hommel was 62 years of age and had been a life long resident of Bushnellville. The little red school house which is still in use and the same his children and grandchildren attended is the one the deceased attended when a youth. He was united in marriage to Augusta Judd of Pine Hill on September 27, 1882. They started house keeping 43 years ago in the same house where his death occurred. Mr. Hommel was a contractor and builder which trade he followed until a few weeks before his death. The deceased was stricken on March 29th with osteomyelitis and an operation was performed by Dr. George Chandler in the Kingston City Hospital, where Mr. Hommel remained one month, after which he returned to his home supposedly on the road to recovery. After three months of patient suffering he died. The funeral was largely attended at his home June 16, the Rev. Mr. Kill of Pine Hill M. E. Church officiating. The floral tributes were many and beautiful showing the love and respect of his many friends and neighbors. He was laid at rest at Shandaken Rural cemetery. Those surviving are his wife and four daughters, Mrs. D. M. Kiscock of Newburgh, T. Mrs. Nash S. Eldridge of Ridgefield Park, N. J., Mrs. Clarence C. Deabam and Miss Kathryn Hommel of Bushnellville, seven grandchildren and one great grandchild. The family has the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Charged With Stealing Car.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Greenwich, Conn., June 23.—Smith S. Burns, 19, and Thomas Dorle, 17, both of New York, today were turned over to New York police for arraignment there on a charge of stealing an automobile owned by Dr. David Gillespie of New York. They were arrested in South Norwalk, Conn., after a chase. A third man in the car escaped, the police said.

Mac Millan's Expedition

Rubber Boat Designed for MacMillan Expedition.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

EQUIPPED with two giant modern inventions, the airplane and the radio, the MacMillan Arctic expedition under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, with the active cooperation of the navy, will attempt to explore the earth's largest remaining "blind spot," an unknown million square miles between the Alaskan peninsula and the North pole. Amphibian airplanes, capable of landing on water, ice or land will be taken by ship to Etah, northern Greenland, within 700 miles of the North pole, and from there and supplemental bases will fly over tremendous areas either wholly unexplored or practically unknown.

The major objective, the region between Alaska and the pole, one-third the area of the United States, has never been seen by a human eye. It is considered possible that it holds a hitherto unknown continent, and it is probable that some sort of land exists there.

The existence of this land is postulated on reports of explorers who have skirted the edges of the unknown area, and of observations of tides and ice conditions along this fringe, which conditions indicate the existence of land.

Should such land exist it will be of great future economic importance in view of the commercial flying that, in years to come, will be done across the Arctic region.

The combination of aircraft and radio in Arctic exploration is a new feature of exploration, which not only adds romance and adventure to the undertaking, but which enhances the scientific value of the expedition.

In Summer and Daylight.
Hitherto our information about the Far North has been from explorers who had to penetrate it in winter, when the ice was continuous; summer flying makes possible observations of entirely different conditions, with 24 hours of daylight to aid the flyers.

This same daylight, however, as radio fans will realize, is a handicap to broadcasting, because night time is radio time. The use of the new short wave length apparatus, under these conditions, is an experiment which will be of value to the new science of wireless communication.

Upper air temperatures in the Far North are almost as little known as the million square miles which may shroud a long-hidden continent. Summer records of these conditions not only will have a value to future flying but may have a direct bearing on weather forecasting.

Forecasting weather consists largely in detecting new disturbances as they show up on the western and northern western borders of the United States, learning their characteristics, and figuring out the paths they probably will follow because of prevailing barometric pressures and temperatures ahead of them.

The great majority of what the weather forecasters call the "lows" that is the areas of subnormal barometric pressure—seem to originate over the warm sea south of the Aleutian islands in the winter, and over the interior of Alaska during the summer. But some of the conditions which cause these "lows" to be "built up" in those places and create "highs" to the east have their birth farther north in the Polar regions, and a better knowledge of temperatures, pressure and wind changes there undoubtedly would facilitate weather forecasting.

In the search for the beginnings of its weather the United States is not concerned with the entire Polar regions. It is most concerned, it happens, with the unexplored territory which lies north of Alaska. Temperatures, pressures and wind conditions—the vital weather factors—are not known in the regions north from Alaska to the pole. Exploration of this area is a preliminary to making detailed observations of these conditions which directly affect farms and orchards of the United States.

Plans for the Expedition.
Etah, the main base of the expedition—the northernmost settlement in the world—lies near the northwestern corner of Greenland at the head of Rasmussen bay where narrow Smith sound begins. Directly across Smith sound is the most like Ellsmere island, the

Legal Phrase

Doctor Vitzelly says of the word "personality": "It is sometimes considered to mean articles of personal adornment. It does not. It is a legal term now in contradistinction to real and includes all movables as money, personal property of any kind whatever, as household goods; chattels real and personal; things movable as distinguished from realty or landed property."

Ancient Customs, Anyway

The origin of the superstition concerning knocking on wood is doubtful. Some authorities attribute it to the ancient religious rite of touching a crucifix when taking an oath; others to the touching of beads of the rosary when praying. Among the ignorant peasants of Europe the custom probably began with the habit of knocking loudly to keep away evil spirits.

"Special Delivery"

The Post Office department says that "special delivery" service is the prompt delivery of mail by messenger during prescribed hours to persons who reside within the carrier limits of city or delivery offices, or within one mile of any post office, or to persons of the rural service who reside more than one mile from the post office but within half a mile of a rural route.

Franklin Lodge Received Flag

The traveling flag which is passing about the Pythian supreme domain was received by Franklin Lodge, No. 37, Knights of Pythias, at their lodge rooms in Pythian Hall on Saturday evening. The flag was received from Olive Branch Lodge, No. 133, of Newburgh, and after being in the possession of Franklin Lodge for a time will be taken to Truth Lodge of Schenectady.

Originating at Switzerland Lodge, No. 7, of Lehigh, Pa., last year, the idea of traveling flag passing about the supreme domain was taken up and since that time the flag had visited several lodges.

Chancellor Commander Wands presided at the special convention of Franklin Lodge Saturday evening, and called upon Supreme Representative Palmer Canfield, Jr., to welcome the visitors to Franklin Lodge. Brother Sussex of Newburgh accompanied by a delegation from that city was escorted with the flag from the bridge to the rooms of Franklin Lodge, where, after the welcome by the supreme representative, the flag was duly presented to Franklin Lodge by Mr. Sussex, who gave a brief history of the flag.

Roscoe Irwin, of Franklin Lodge, received the flag in behalf of his lodge and gave a very interesting talk on the flag. This was followed by remarks by several of the visiting members of the order from Storm King, Hope, Zeno and Olive Branch Lodges, including a talk by District Deputy M. J. Hanna of Walden, repute of the 16th district.

At the conclusion of the meeting there was a social hour and refreshments.

Franklin Lodge will make plans for the conveying of the flag to Schenectady at some future date.

THREE AMERICAN GOLF INVADERS QUALIFY

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Troon, Scotland, June 23.—The big three among American invaders in the British open golf tournament—Joe Kirkwood, MacDonald Smith and Jim Barnes—came safely through the perils of qualifying today and virtually assured themselves of starting the long grind Thursday.

The American scores were: Kirkwood, 79 74 153; Smith, 77 77 154; Barnes, 77 78 155.

Barring totally unexpected upsets, scores of 158 and under will qualify.

SHIPMENTS OF ULSTER COUNTY STRAWBERRIES

Thirty-four carloads of strawberries, worth $68,000 have been shipped from Ulster county within the past few days. These growers from Highland, Milton and Marlborough have sent most of these berries to Canada and the up-states. Large quantities have also been shipped to Pennsylvania and the New England states. The Highland and Marlborough growers ship under consignment, each corporation including about 75 growers.

A LaFollette In Senate Race

Is Program Announced By National and State Progressive Leaders—Age of Robert Jr., Causes Talk Among Aspiring State Officers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Madison, Wis., June 23.—A member of the LaFollette family, either the widow or the eldest son, Robert Jr., will make the race for the United States Senate seat made vacant by the death of Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin.

This was the definite program announced by national and state progressive leaders here today for holding together harmoniously and unitedly the great political organization built by the dead senator.

Aspiring state officers, who had cast eyes toward Washington, have been told bluntly that they could not expect the support of Senate progressives who feel that, for political reasons, either Mrs. LaFollette or "Young Bob" as he is called here, should make the race.

The warning was sounded by Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, a LaFollette lieutenant in the Senate, who issued a statement today declaring that "petty jealousies and personal ambitions must be forgotten."

"The progressives of the nation are looking to their brethren in Wisconsin to make no mistake at this critical hour," Norris said. "The death of our great leader must not be taken as any disintegration in our ranks."

Norris's declaration was made after a visit to the LaFollette farm where he saw Mrs. LaFollette and Robert and was understood to have the full approval of such senate progressives as Crookhart of Iowa, Shipstead of Minnesota and Wheeler of Montana, who attended the funeral rites.

By merely dropping a hint that she wanted it, Mrs. LaFollette could have the entire progressive support. That is certain, and has been assured her from all quarters. But she is disinclined to become a candidate.

The selection of a candidate awaits her decision. Years before he died, Senator LaFollette had hoped that Robert would follow him in political position. He had kept young Bob closely under his eye and had made him chairman of the state Republican central committee. Those who want the son say he could defeat any candidate in the state at present because of his hold on the voters and because of the high esteem and love in which the name LaFollette is now held. That was shown by the outpouring of thousands at the senator's bier.

The chief talk against Bob is that he is too young having reached 30 only last January and even though he might get the office now would have trouble holding all factions in line later.

On the whole, political observers here believe that the death of LaFollette because it has given birth to a great sentimental wave, will make the progressives of the state stronger than ever for the present, at least.

Pole Too Long

Master John Limpus Harrell, six-year-old son of J. A. Harrell, clothing man of Crawfordsville, is in the habit of sneaking out with his daddy for an evening at vaudeville.

Impressed by music, he takes particular notice of the musician and his "big violin," as he calls it, in the orchestra—meaning the bass viol.

"Why mother," says John, "he has a big sawer and saws and saws like this," as he goes through the motion of bowing.

Jumping up as he reaches high above his head he continues:

"And mother, the man can hardly reach up the pole."—Indianapolis News.

Momus in Mythology

In classical mythology, Momus was the son of Nox, and god of mockery and ridicule. He delighted to rail at the actions of men and gods, sparing no one except Aphrodite, in whom he could find nothing to criticize, and in consequence vexed himself to death. It is said that he found fault with the man made by Hephaestus, because there was no window in his breast through which his secret thought might be seen.—Kansas City Star.

Wolverine a Scavenger

The wolverine, the largest of the weasel tribe, while ready to fight anything of its own size, or in fact many times larger, has short legs and a heavy body which makes it a slow pursuer of live game. Consequently, the wolverine is, to a large extent, a scavenger. They will lazily travel long distances to feast on dead, sick or crippled animals. They have the reputation of even feeding on the porcupine, which no other animal will eat.

Natural Supposition

The first, but inexperienced angler on her first fishing trip cast into the wedding pool and promptly felt a vigorous strike. She shrieked delightedly and the guide came dashing to the rescue. "What is it?" he cried. "A salmon!" The fair angler glanced over her shoulder. "Yes," she exclaimed. "I suppose so. At least, that's what my fishing license calls for."

Peculiar Division

Out of the mountains of babies and sockings may be perfected definition as well as prose. For example, there is the case of the teacher who, at the close of the reading lesson, was questioning her class on the subject matter thereof. "What is an ogre?" she asked. "Ogre, miss," replied the bright boy of the class, "it's half a Ssh and half a Sss."

Babe in Flight

MRS. HILDA BETTY COOKE

Mrs. Hilda Betty Cooke, after her husband was granted a divorce in Toronto, fled to Reno with her baby, Shirley, precipitating an international legal battle.

Childish Palms Often of Intense Interest

Have you ever examined the hand of a newborn baby or of a little child? Lo and behold, you will find it lined and marked!

Very likely the two hands will be quite different, yet there is as yet no possibility of experience; but just as under the microscope one may see the perfect future flower in the heart of a bulb, here we have in miniature what the developed hand may be. Unfortunately we have insufficient data.

I have often wished that a complete set of records of the hands of many children from babyhood to maturity could be collected for reference. There seems, however, to be a very noticeable period between, say, seven and fourteen, when the majority of hands are more indefinite in character than they are either earlier or later, possibly because at this period the average growing boy or girl is in a cycle of physical development. Character is temporarily fluid—jolly, to use a homely simile, only in spots.

Not that you can't read a lot from children's hands, even from an infant's, and there is the marvel of it. Where does that mysterious thing that is individuality and personality come from? What determines that? For not in a million years can you predict a child's hands from its parents; any more than you can its personality.

Children's hands are tremendously interesting. One may guess the direction of change. In infancy the lines are clear and type is not, though I have seen an infant's hands that had all the completeness of an adult palm. The amazing diversity of the hand is indicated by a fact that the wise Chinese long ago recognized—that no two are ever alike; a finger print is the final test of the individual.

I have often wondered if no two rose leaves are ever exactly alike, if the immense diversity of the human body holds true in all the world of matter under whatever form.—Ethel Watts Mumford in the Saturday Evening Post.

Bridegroom's Mind Fixed

The Toronto Globe tells a good story of a recent wedding in that city when the bridegroom's instincts revolted at a word in the part of the ceremony he was called upon to repeat. For years he had argued with a dear relative over the correctness of the word "betwixt," holding for the simpler word "between." It became a fixed part of his belief in his study of words.

Suddenly he faced an emergency when at his own marriage, with a church gathering looking on, the clergyman, as from out the blue, sprang the words:

"Betwixt thee and me." "Between thee and me," repeated the bridegroom.

The clergyman tried again, and with like result. It took four tries before the bridegroom, who had no desire to be stubborn, but was acting on some subconscious suggestion, finally got the right word, and the ceremony was brought to a happy conclusion.

The Man Who Knows How

The Muncie (Ind.) Press springs a spring thought as well as sermon in this one:

"The man who knows how to do things around the yard becomes a citizen of paramount importance. You may know a great deal about stocks and bonds, but what do you know about seeds and bulbs? You may know much about a straight business policy, but can you plow a straight furrow? If you cannot manipulate a hoe in the springtime, of what avail is it to you as a citizen, what can you do? A straight ditch? But if you can make two potatoes grow where none grew before, or can induce a green worm to bob itself above the greenward where before was only grass, you are entitled to the distinguished service cross of domesticity."

Universal Won Its First Game

Schilling Nine Lost to Universal Team
Score 8 to 7—Pitchers Are in Good Form—Game Tonight.

Monday evening, at the Athletic field, the postponed game between the Universal Road Machinery Company and the Schilling Furniture Company was played off. The Universal team handed the furniture makers a trimming and came across with the first win of the season with an 8 to 7 score.

The Schilling team started off the contest with displaying a lively little hitting streak in the first inning and crossed the rubber for four runs. In the third the furniture makers scored one run and ended their scoring in the fifth when they made a total of three runs.

Three runs crossed over the plate for the Universal nine in the opening frame and three hits were chalked up in their favor.

In the fourth inning three more runs were tallied taking the lead away from the Schilling team. Two runs were also gathered in the fifth frame.

Williams twirled a very good game for the furniture makers allowing his opponents five hits. He handed out four free passes and had six strikeouts. Although Williams outpitched his opponent he was not given the usual support.

Colvin, who twirled for the road builders, showed up better than in previous games and handed five free passes and six hits. He struck out five.

NO SUMMER SCHOOL.

AT SAHLER SANITARIUM.

It will no doubt be of much interest to the friends of the Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium and of the Sahler Summer School, which has been held for the past eleven years and has become a recognized part of the summer work at the sanitarium, to know that it has been decided to postpone the school for the present season. Although Mrs. Sahler is still gaining in health, her family and friends feel it would be best that she abandon the responsibility and cares of the school for this year, as the work of the sanitarium is heavy and quite sufficient for the present. This does not mean, of course, a permanent discontinuance of the school, merely a rest for the present season.

However, there will be a number of addresses and entertainments held during the summer in the Sahler Park pavilion, also the annual fair of the Lead-a-Hand Society, the general public, as in former years, have a cordial invitation to be present. The dates of the coming season will be announced later.

Cornell's Star Pitcher Is One of Best

J. A. Mulligan, Cornell university pitcher, who defeated the University of Virginia, without allowing a hit or run. He is considered one of the best college pitchers.

Adams and Marquard

Are Oldest Pitchers

Babe Adams and Rube Marquard rank as the oldest pitchers in the National league in point of service. The former first stepped into the limelight in 1909 when he hurled the Pirates to three world series triumphs over the Detroit Tigers. Marquard has been in the main tent since 1908.

Walter Johnson of Washington is the only major league gunner to outrank them in length of regime. Johnson came up in 1907.

Sporting Squibs

Alfred Ortu of Chicago is the national ski champion.

Bull fighting has been the national sport of Mexico for 100 years.

"La savate" is the science of boxing with the feet as well as with fists.

During the 1928 Olympiad in Holland, none of the events will be held on Sunday.

Ole Jansen, ski champion of Norway, holds the world's record with a jump of 208 feet.

Jack Dempsey's first purse amounted to $180 for whipping Billy Meehan in Oakland, Cal.

The American Red Cross has nearly 50,000 expert swimmers attached to the life-saving corps.

American athletes will be among the contestants in the big track meet to be held in the Stockholm stadium in August.

Seven varsity crews, one more than last year, will compete in the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie June 22.

Henry Sullivan announces that he will make another attempt next fall to swim the English channel. Gosh, the fans can hardly wait!

Since the war golf has been steadily growing in popularity in Belgium and Spain and there are signs that it is making an appeal to the Italians.

The Rumson Country club at Red Bank, N. J., again will be the scene of the national junior polo championship tournament. The title play will take place some time between July 11 and 25.

Also Plays Baseball

Herman Fillette, pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, has been purchased outright by the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league.

The rejuvenated lineup of the Boston Braves looks good. William Marriot at third and M. L. Barrus at first base are excellent additions.

William Zimmerman, outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, is another recruit who may make a place for himself in the regular lineup. He is a good hitter.

Edwin Spatter, outfielder of the Boston National League Baseball club, has been released by optional agreement to the Nashville club of the Southern association.

The long labors of Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics look as though they would be rewarded with a pennant-winning team this year. The only uncertainty is the pitching staff.

Ed Delehaunt, who started playing major league ball in 1906, enjoys the unique distinction of having led both the American and National league in batting. He knocked out four homers and one single in a single game.

Star Is Given Medal

William G. Giles, second baseman on Michigan's championship conference nine last season, has been awarded the western conference medal for scholastic and athletic proficiency. He is the first baseball player to get the award in many years. He was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Colonials Lost Third Straight

Chapple's Stars Hand Kingston Nine a Whipping at Oneonta—Kinney Touched For 12 Hits—Locals Got 10.

For the third time this season the Chapple Johnson's All-Stars gave the Colonials a ducking, this time the battle was staged at Oneonta and the Kingstonians were submerged to the merry tune of 14-0.

Paul Kinney was leading the defensive work for the locals and the All-Stars found him for 12 hits. Johnson and Smith each met the Kingston twirler for three pointers while Chapple's famous catcher, Lewing drove out a tremendous wallop that went up and over for a circuit hit.

Wheeler adorned the thorne for the colored players until the eighth when the Colonial's hitting showed traits of one of their famous rallies, which caused Carter to be put in the box. This change kept the locals from doing evil to the Stars as Carter didn't even allow a Colonial aboard the initial sack.

Fourteen of the locals were left stranded on the bags while only four of the enemy were treated in this manner which speaks for itself. At the times when the hits were necessary the Colonials couldn't seem to connect safely with the ball. The locals made their runs by small totals which kept them trailing behind the All-Stars but they could not make them fast enough to pass the Stars. The Amsterdam outfit had a big picnic the third inning getting six runs and again in the eighth they pounded out four more.

Mercer was again with the locals, being stationed on left field, while Wilcox was at right and Kelly at center. Each of these fielders figured in difficult plays in the sixth frame. Mercer catching a drive to start with that was just off the ground when he caught it. On the next out McDermott ran to the grandstand and caught one just as it would have hit the wire. Wilcox came in for his on the next when Hobson hit to right a wallop that looked like a sure hit. The score:

Favored to Retain Title.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 23.—Dexter Cummings of Yale, the playing-through champion, was favored to retain his title today at the opening of the intercollegiate golf championship at the Montclair Golf Club. Cummings won the title in 1922 and 1924 and a victory in the present tournament will establish a new record for successive triumphs. Clear weather and cool breezes greeted the field.

Tagging Major League Bases

Those bolsters Pirates again ran amuck socking them and Stuart for twenty-one hits and beating the Cardinals 24 to 6, where two days before they mauled the Dodgers for 21 runs. Seven homers were made by the Pirates. Grantham getting two. Hornsby obliged with another, his eighteenth of the season.

Whitehill left-handed the Red Sox into submission while the Tigers clouted Ross and Zahner and won 8 to 4, giving them the series.

The Cubs blundered base hits with errors and came home on the bit to win 9 to 6.

Zachary was trifled with for eleven hits but was very parsimonious about it and the Senators gained a full game on the Athletics by beating the Indians 7 to 2.

There was no beating about the bush in the Athletics-Browns game. Bullet Joe holding his former mates in check and helping the situation along with a homer in the eighth, the Browns winning 9 to 2.

Lyons bore right down on the Yanks and pitched the White Sox into an even break in the series, 6 to 1, the Sox pummeling Shawkey and Penning.

Jennings Will Lead the Giants

Illness of McGraw Will Remove Him From the Playing Bench—Pirates Will Soon Exchange Places With Giants.
(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 23.—It was intimated rather broadly today that the New York Giants, already cut down to the size of their field by injuries and a scandalous western trip, may be forced to part intimate company with John McGraw for the remainder of the 1925 season. McGraw, convalescent from a rather serious illness, has not recovered his health with a celerity his physicians have deemed necessary and the tip now is that he will do his master minding at a point well removed from the playing bench.

Nothing official has been vouchsafed about the situation. In fact the matter has been pretty thoroughly "saused."

But the present understanding, never-the-less, is that Hughey Jennings will continue to take active charge of the club and John McGraw will take active charge of himself.

It is hardly the time McGraw himself would select for a temporary "reimbursement." The Giants need him as the plaster needs the Paris, for the Pirates, giving the greatest exhibition of sustained hitting in the history of all baseball, are coming with the speed of a prairie fire.

They are only a game and a half back today and a continuance of their respective speeds soon will see the two clubs exchanging positions. Everything has gone to the faissetto in the Giant camp where a bit more than a month ago all was pink and pretty.

Injuries to Frisch, Groh, Lindstrom, Kelly, Terry and Scott followed in rapid succession, and at one time, one might find difficulty in recognizing the Giants with a college Loy on third base and a spavined catcher, twelve years in the minor leagues, playing first base.

Scott, one of three pitchers who have kept the club in front, was out for several days after a collision with Grimm at Chicago. Another, Bentley, was beaten several times by one run and the third proceeded to get himself suspended for conduct unbecoming a ball player, whatever that may be.

The latter was Virgil Barnes, who claimed he sprained a careless ankle in a Pittsburgh bath tub. McGraw, however, pointed out that all Pittsburgh bath tubs are equipped with sand paper linings and sent the young man home. That didn't do the club any particular good, either.

Finally, we have exhibit A in the person of Ross Young, a normal 340-hitter. He is steeping blithely along at about .225 and can't seem to accelerate the pace. That is an absurd performance for a man like Young in these days of the lively ball.

All in all, it is not remarkable that the Giants have won only eight games in the last seventeen played.

STROKE EDDY OUT-GUESSED STROKE ULBRICKSON.
By Telegraph to The Freeman. Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 23.—What would have happened had Washington made its bid for victory a minute earlier?
That was the question asked on every hand today by the star-bedecked 60,000 crowd that saw the Navy restore eastern rowing prestige by beating Washington a half length for the intercollegiate four mile championship race yesterday.
"It wouldn't be fair to say that the better crew won," declared young Dick Glendon, Navy coach. "They were both great crews."
That seemed to be the consensus of opinion among rowing men, although the latter were quick to state that the Middies rowed the better judged race and were all the more to be congratulated for winning with their punishing stroke. It seemed to be the general idea that Stroke Eddy of the Navy, out-guessed Stroke Ulbricksen of Washington, by getting the jump on him at the third mile.

SILUQUA WILL RACE AT RHINEBECK FAIR.
Some good horse racing is expected for July Fourth at Springbrook Park, Rhinebeck. A number of local trainers have had their horses working out since early this season at the Springbrook track.
Percy Brink of Stone Ridge has had four of his favorites across the river, getting them into trim for the race. Brink's horses have been making remarkable time for so early in the season.
Frank Howell of Poughkeepsie has also been training three of his horses for the Fourth of July race. Lewis Price of Cairo has been making good time with a three-year-old, Joe Marlowe, and is also training "Tiger Lily" and Ferrigo Jr., a sream racer.
The track is expected to be in perfect condition for the fast card that has been entered, such pacers as Siluqua, Hal Regent, Bedford Girl, Bertha Cochran, Bert Porter, Ferrigo Jr. and Lynn Kohl.

Navy Wins Varsity Race

Crowds estimated fully 50,000 persons at Poughkeepsie on Monday afternoon witnessed the Navy nose out the Washington crew by three quarters of a length, a crew that has ruled the Hudson for the past two years. The two rivals came down the four mile course nose to nose when the midshipmen slipped under the railroad bridge the winner, after the west coasters gained a foot and then faltered. The Navy's time was clocked at 19:24 4-5 while their closest competitors crossed at 19:28.

This was the first four-mile race at Poughkeepsie since 1916, and the second time in the history of the regatta that seven crews started in a varsity race.

It was the greatest race of the decade that the crowd, massed mostly on the west banks of the Hudson watched sweep down to the finish mark. An observation train of 33 cars followed the race besides the fans on both banks of the river.

Washington's representatives in the Junior Varsity were more successful, beating their rivals by 1 lengths, being timed at 10:26. Syracuse won out in the Freshman race, beating Pennsylvania by 1 lengths.
